#2: Unnecessary risk for harm; social coercion

- > You are your own person and not required to do anything (unlike slavery or human trafficking, where you're forced)
- > At the elite level, substances are likely to be used... but no one is forcing you to compete at the level
- > Again; you are your own person

Possible harm?

- Maybe, so is sugar and Tylenol
- Football players are more likely to get injured from the sport than steroids

#3 Steroids are unfair

- > Genetics dictate eligibility to the sport
  - ie: If you're 5 feet tall and trying to play in the NBA; no chance
- > Money?? Sociology
  - The advantage of nutritionist, supplements, gym memberships, PTs

#4 Steroids strip the soul from the sport

- Entertainment is based off the unordinary
  - > All forms of media/entertainment
    - ie; sports, action movies; NASA, porn/exotic dancers
- > Sports generate momentum with entertainment
- > Interest is subjective

#6 Rules

- > Steroids are illegal
  - "Steroids are making people more athletic than we want them to be"... Biden
- > People hitting homers are being place in prison
  - Misuse of the justice system
- > Laws can be altered/changed
  - Some laws are silly...and outdated
- > Rules on steroids are dependent on the sport... inconsistent

#7 Natural vs Unnatural

- > Equipment to train for sports isn't natural
- > Nutritional foods aren't natural; GMO
- > Shoes aren't natural
- > Testosterone is a *natural hormone
